COUNTY SEAT NEWS

Whew! What dry weather. Farmers need rain. Business men need a rain and about the only one that doesn't is the stockman who is sitting on the top of the world with an abundance of well cured grass to carry his fat stock through the winter.

Quite a number of people have been in the County Seat this week attending the first session of Probate Court ever held in Harding County. Judge Julian Padilla is in charge and promises to get the docket cleared up in a couple of days work. Regular sessions will be held every two months hereafter.

The farm house, a two story adobe, belonging to Mr. Hale south of Solano was burned down Sunday afternoon and the entire household effects of Mr. Oscar Stephens was destroyed. Fire started in the kitchen stove and spread so rapidly that nothing was saved.

Hon. E. F. Gallegos, County Commissioner, returned to his valley home from a business trip to Santa Fe this week and was a business visitor in the County Seat Monday looking after personal matters and attending to some county business that required his attention.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Lloyd are the proud possessors of a recently arrived baby girl that the stork under the expert guidance of Dr. Daniels left at the Daniels Hospital on Saturday night. The doctor seems to have a personal stand in with the stork that controls this part of the Mesa and quite a number of perspiring taxpayers have taken out hunting licenses and are trying to induce the doctor to guide them to the nest of this particular bird.

Miss Tracy, a younger sister of Mrs. A. W. Drake, of Texas is visiting the Drake family this week and is proving an attractive and welcome addition to the young peoples crowd of this part of the country.

Mrs. Schaeffer and two children from Albuquerque have arrived and commenced active work in the schools of Mosquero. She will have charge of the seventh and eighth grades. This makes seven teachers in the Mosquero schools in town and two in the country that are using the country school houses on account of the lack of room in town. When the big school house is completed next year there will probably be judging by this years attendance some twelve or fifteen teachers employed in the schools here.

Mr. R. E. Trujillo, the Mosquero Barber, made a trip to Rosebud Sunday returning with another barber chair that he will install in his barber shop. He is also ordering a shoe shining stand and additional fixtures including a heating system for hot water and baths and expects to soon have one of the best equipped shops on the Mesa.

On Saturday night the many friends and neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Kennady met at the Kennady home and gave them a surprise and farewell party that lasted until the small hours of morning. The Kennady family left for an extended vacation in Arizona Tuesday morning. Mr. James, of Montoya, is taking the place of Mr. Kennady as agent and operator at the depot during his absence.

Mr. Paul K. Kingsbury, genial manager of the Wilson Store returned from Kansas City Sunday where he attended the American Legion Convention and reports the greatest time of his life. He says that there was a large crowd, including Generalissimo Foch, Diaz, Pershing and himself and that the City was literally turned over to the boys of the Legion and that he never expects to see a better convention and in case that it was possible to get up a better one that they could just keep it to themselves as his one was plenty good enough for him.

Mrs. Roy A. McGlothling left for Brady, Texas where she will spend a month or so visiting relatives and friends. Roy has announced that he will stay at home and behave himself during her absence and evidently induced his wife to believe it. She is the only one so far as we have learned that does believe that; statement, however.

Oh, well, it's just one damned thing after another. When the flies don't bother our bald spot the frost bites our ears and we suffer with chilblains. When it isn't too cold it's too warm and when it isn't too warm it's too cold. Nothing is right in this old world but ourselves and some times when we get bilious we begin to faintly imagine that there is a barely possible chance that we are slightly imperfect. When we are young the big girls are all anxious to kiss us and when we are big nobody but the little girls take notice of us. When we were kids the women tried to see how much clothes they could wear. Bustles stood out behind like hay racks, trails drug the ground like miniature comets, skirts were so long that they swept the floors and streets like vacuum cleaners, leg o' mutton sleeves, pushed us off the sidewalks and merry widow hats hove in sight around the corners long before the wearers arrived within hailing distance. But now oh, now, its different. The more dressed up they are the less clothes they have on. Its true that the more that we see of our modern girls the better we like them but blamed if it keeps up we will have to like them too blamed much. A young mother is handicapped because her half grown child can't reach her skirts to hang onto in a crowd, they wear Georgette waists in winter, Alaskan furs in summer. Their noses get red from too much sunshine, (ours from too much moonshine) and the busily ply the powder brush while they carry on a sprightly conversation with half a dozen different young men. But after all, we had rather live now than when we were young. We couldn't appreciate what the gods send us like we can now.
